

(March 30, 2004)

Probability of relative primality

Paul Garrett <garrett@math.umn.edu>

For a large integer N , assign equal probabilities to all positive integers less than N , and let p_N be the probability that two randomly chosen positive integers less than N are relatively prime. Show that

$$\lim_{N \rightarrow \infty} p_N = \frac{6}{\pi^2}$$
